Technology Shines at New Jersey Venture Conference; blue dog Network Wins “Best Management Team”

Dana Vizneau, CEO of blue dog Network accepted the Best Management Team Award from Chris Doherty of the TWC Group.

The Palace was the backdrop for technology’s royalty last week when the New Jersey Technology Council (NJTC) crowned the “Best in Show” at the NJ Venture Conference. blue dog Network received the “Best Management Team” award and garnered much attention from the impressive collection of investor attendees.

“We are so proud to be recognized by the NJTC. The blue dog Network unique offering is long overdue for small and mid-sized businesses (SMB). By redefining the standards of computing we are able to provide SMB’s with the same technology infrastructure afforded to large enterprises, which they need to stay competitive.” Dana Vizneau, CEO, blue dog Network.

The annual daylong Venture Conference drew a crowd of more than 600 entrepreneurs and investors looking for the next great deal and over 60 companies from various sectors including life sciences, IT, energy/environment, communications and entertainment ready to show off their exciting technologies.

The NJTC offers a host of premier financing conferences throughout the year, but according to NJTC President and CEO Maxine Ballen, the Venture Conference is one of the Council's most exciting events. "This is the event I look forward to all year long because the exhibiting companies and the investors who come out to see them are a testament to the NJTC's work," she said. "We strive to create a business climate where technology can flourish and the Venture Conference is a day when we are able to see the fruits of our labor as a community."

"blue dog Network is a company to watch," said Ballen continued. "It is an example of the best this region has to offer. In fact, this year's Venture Conference attracted some of the most exciting companies we've seen in years as well as an incredibly impressive collection of the region's most prestigious investors."
